

Moscow to Manhattan

A narrative journey from -30°C on the Red Square to the immigration queues of JFK.

The Freeze

-30°C

Strong Easterly Wind

Crisp, brutal air that burns the nostrils.

Exposed skin feels like
pins and needles.

Sound muffled by deep snow, save for the crunch of boots.

Everything frozen in time.

The Survival Kit

Zone 1
Base Layer

Zone 2
Outer Layer

Zone 3
Accessories

The Rendezvous

Maya

Scarf pulled tight.
Eyes stinging.
Miserable despite
full preparation.

Peter

Flushed face.
Tentative steps.
Regretting the lack of layers.

“The wind is cutting right through me...
let’s find somewhere warm.”

Sanctuary

The Thaw

The physical transition from -30°C to room temperature is painful. Teeth chattering for 10 minutes. Skin burns as the blood returns to the extremities. The body remains internally cold for hours.

Cozy

Traditional

Inviting

The Order

The Departure

Service Upgrade

Transitioning from roleplay friends to First Class passengers. Selection: Mimosa & Gin and Tonic.

“I expect a little bit more than just orange juice.”

The Transatlantic Crossing

Flight Details

Origin:
Moscow

Destination:
New York

Flight Time:
9 hours 45 minutes

Class:
First

The Gatekeeper

Have you ever been convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude?

Can you confirm funds to support yourself?

Status: No crimes. Funds confirmed.

The Passport Dilemma

GERMAN PASSPORT

Visa Waiver Program

ESTA (Approved 2 weeks prior)

✓ Entry Granted

RUSSIAN PASSPORT

Tourist Visa Required

⚠ Processing delays / Embassy Required

🔍 Valid visa found in suitcase left pocket
(Exp 2028)

✓ Entry Granted

The Final Leg

JFK International Airport → Downtown Manhattan

Inter
Car / Rideshare.

~45 mins. High Cost.
Traffic Dependent.

Inter
Public Transit (Selected).

AirTrain to Jamaica Station
-> E Train to Manhattan.

Cost effective.
Traffic immune.

4,600 Miles Later

A journey defined by contrasts. From the biting -30°C winds of the Red Square to the warmth of mushroom pelmeni, and from the luxury of First Class to the sterile fluorescent lights of JFK Immigration.

Welcome to New York.